

Oops, we ran out of room! Magazines have to be printed in even page totals divisible by 4 (24, 28, 32, 36, etc.). Of course, every paid advertisement MUST be placed, and timely items (those that "expire" with the month, like scheduled events) can't be held over. So what happens when there are 29 pages worth of items? (Yes, this is page 25, but the back page was reserved for an ad, and the two pages preceding that one saved for the Calendar.) Well, that would take either the rapid filling of three pages that don't yet exist (to make an even 32; from 31 pages, it's easier to make up the one only page), or one page's worth of items have to be held over. Sometimes it's a column, or an article, or pictures, or a bit of each. THAT is the tough last-minute jig-saw decision editors often face, and someone is usually disappointed when something they expected didn't show up.

Above, is a picture from the Town Comprehensive Plan meeting, held April 29th, and we will be running regular reports on its progress through the year, including a survey for the entire town to answer. Below, one of a series of pictures from Run Like the Wind; they, and more about the event, will be in the July issue. As will some other few pictures and articles that didn't make it this month.
